Overview

All poker clients affiliated with iPoker are compatible with PokerTracker3. All iPoker references will refer to all the poker clients affiliated with iPoker. For example, Titan Poker, VC Poker, and all other poker clients will be referred to as iPoker.

This guide is intended for users who wish to manually configure PokerTracker3 to import hand histories from iPoker in the event that hand histories are not automatically configured for import.

For information on installing and setting up PokerTracker3, see the PokerTracker3 Quick Start Guide.

PokerTracker 3 is compatible with many popular poker rooms including the following:

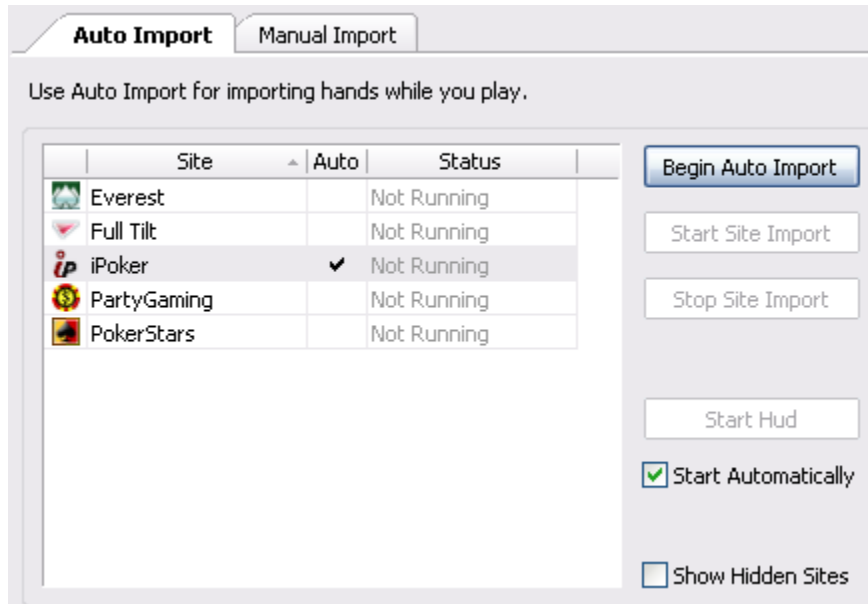

- CD Poker
- Titan Poker
- Paddy Power Poker
- VC Poker
- And many more!

About Importing Hand Histories

PokerTracker 3 may not be automatically configured to import hand histories from iPoker. You will have to configure PokerTracker manually in order for PokerTracker to automatically import hand histories.

You will notice immediately if iPoker is configured to automatically import hand histories by looking at the Auto Import tab. A checkmark will appear in the Auto field beside iPoker as shown in the screenshot below.

As you can see in the above screenshot, there is a checkmark in the Auto field for iPoker. If there is no checkmark in the Auto field, iPoker is not configured to automatically import hand histories.

There are several reasons why PokerTracker 3 may not be configured to automatically import hand histories:

- You do not have the iPoker client installed on your computer. If you have hand histories with iPoker but no longer have the client installed on your computer, you must locate the directory where your hand histories are located. Go to www.ipoker.com to download an affiliated poker client.
- The iPoker client has not been configured to save hand histories to disk. In this case, you must select the directory where your hand histories will be located. Note that you cannot select a directory if you do not have the iPoker client installed on your computer.

You may see these errors if you navigate to the iPoker Configuration tab. The error message appears under the Directory Configuration box as shown below.

If you see any of the above messages, you must manually configure iPoker to import hand histories into the database. See Manually Importing Hand Histories for more information.

Configuring Your Hand Histories at iPoker

You must configure the iPoker client to export hand histories to a designated directory in your hard drive. This is important so that PokerTracker 3 may grab hand histories for the database.

To configure your hand histories in iPoker, do the following:

1. On the iPoker home screen, click on the options button. An options dialog should pop up.
2. Make sure that the Store Hand History Locally box is marked off under Game Settings.

Your hand histories will be saved at C:\Program Files\<iPoker client>\History where <iPoker client> is the name of the poker client you installed.

Manually Importing Hand Histories

To manually import hand histories from iPoker, do the following:

1. Navigate to the Import > Auto Import tab if you are not already there.
2. Click on iPoker to highlight it and click on the iPoker Configuration tab.
3. Locate the directory where you placed your hand histories by clicking on the  button.
4. Click on the Automatically Start With Auto-Import checkbox in the Auto-Import Options box.
5. Click on the Begin Auto Import button to start importing hand histories into the database.

PokerTracker will now be configured to automatically import hand histories from iPoker.

Tip: Click on the Start Automatically checkbox if you want PokerTracker 3 to automatically import hand histories whenever you launch PokerTracker 3.
